Call to Accredited ACS Judges and Novice Judges

Atlantic Coast Camellia Society Spring Meeting

The Board of Directors of ACCS wants to know from American Camellia Society Novice Judges whether or not we should conduct a Judges School the third week in September at the convention in Litchfield Beach, South Carolina. Please call Richard Mims at 803 438-9741 or email at rkmimsis@bellsouth.net. Please provide your name, phone number, & mention judge's school & Richard Mims will call you back. At least a six-student class is needed. It is definite that a school will be held for those judges who want to renew ACS credentials whose terms are expiring this year or next. Contact Geary Serpas at serpasgm@ntinet.com if you want to participate & be recertified by ACS for another five-year period.

The spring meeting was held on Saturday, April 30, in Columbia SC in conjunction with the Mid-Carolina Camellia Society Spring Picnic & Auction at the home of Dr. Pete & Donna Denton. Much discussion centered on the Fall Convention which is always the third Saturday in September. Again this year the Convention will be held at Litchfield by the Sea at Litchfield Beach, SC. Arrangements are well under way & the room costs will be the same as last year and in 2007. These are exceptional rates for great accommodations at a facility where all official functions are within walking distance. Talk to someone who came last year about the wonderful time we had as an indication of the good time you will have should you decide to come to the convention this year.

Quite a few clubs from Florida are now considered in the Atlantic Coast territory & we welcome all of those new members. As Editor of The Journal, I seek your input with announcements & articles for publication. Please, presidents, have your members join ACCS so each person may get their own copy of The Journal & to help us promote camellias in the Atlantic Coast states. We also want your members' participation in governance of the ACCS. Only members who attend conventions are considered for candidacy as an officer or director. The Directors want all societies to know that that ACCS owns a very good projector for PowerPoint presentations that may be used by clubs for a nominal fee. Contact Miles Beach in Charleston, SC, for information.

President's Message

Mack McKinnon

An outstanding camellia season has just ended and cameliaphytes are getting ready for yet another great season. New growth is being nurtured like a new born baby in anticipation of getting good, sturdy growth with hardening and "bud set" in early summer. The 2011 spring shows started in weather with extremely cold nights. Fewer than the normal numbers of blooms in "the grown outside category" was the rule because of the bloom-killing, hard-freeze nights. The situation reversed itself, however, and outstanding shows were held. From the reports, I'm told some shows had more flowers than anticipated and others had all tables full.

The spring ACCS board meeting was held in conjunction with the Mid-Carolina Camellia Society picnic and annual auction on Saturday, April 30, at the home of Pete and Donna Denton. The Dentons have been gracious hosts for our meetings for many years. At the Board meeting, plans for the convention to be held September 16 & 17, 2011 at the Litchfield Resort was the main topic. Several proposals were made to make the experience more entertaining, enjoyable and informative. Plan to attend; you will have a wonderful experience at a beautiful location. Oh! By the way, we are looking for a volunteer to "kite surf" during the Friday night party. We observe this through the windows overlooking the Atlantic Ocean. Alas, the guy who surfed last year says he is not available.

Richard Mims and his daughter, Mary Kay, published the first all color issue of Atlantic Coast Camellias in January. Let's help them make it better and with less work on their part by submitting articles. Many of us have something of interest about camellias or camellia people that may be shared with the membership. Also, show the Journal at Camellia Meetings and to friends and encourage them to join the ACCS. The Journal alone is worth the membership, not to mention getting to know a great bunch of people and having the opportunity to frolic at the beach with them in September.

In Memoriam: Hulyn Smith

December 23, 1929—March 22, 2011

Hulyn Smith, 81, of Valdosta, Georgia, died at his home after a short illness. He was born in Fulton County and had lived in Valdosta since 1958. Hulyn loved growing, hybridizing, competing, and sharing newly discovered camellia information with the very best camellia growers. Numerous varieties were named by him after family members, friends, and whatever suited him. He is responsible for strains of variegation that make camellia plants the strains competitors are most seeking. Among many positions, Hulyn served as a President of the America Camellia Society. His home group, the Valdosta Camellia Society, is known for its great shows during each camellia season. Hulyn served as Chair of Judges for numerous years and will be sorely missed by Valdosta members and members of the Atlantic Coast Camellia Society where he served from 1980-1982 as the Society's first President.

Hulyn Smith was presented the Atlantic Coast Camellia Society AWARD OF MERIT on September 25, 2004. The award was presented for his dedication and enthusiastic support of the Society, as well as many other societies both national and international to which he belonged. Not only did he serve as its first president but was very active in founding the Atlantic Coast Camellia Society. To our knowledge Hulyn never turned down a request by an organization for a camellia program. His research and development work and his knowledge of the genus Camellia made him one of the very best presenters. He was always willing to share information and new techniques on propagating and growing camellias.

Hulyn and his wife, Janet, always opened their home, garden and greenhouses to visitors, whether they were local, regional, national or international. He always recruited for the American Camellia Society and was responsible for many of us becoming members. Hulyn will be remembered as a legend in the camellia world.

Survivors include his wife, Janet P. Smith of Valdosta; three daughters and two sons-in-law, Renee Smith Powell and Hank Powell of Newnan, Lauren Smith Tudor, Mandy Smith White and Jeff White, all of Valdosta; his grandchildren, Rebecca Land Segrest and Glenn Segrest of Rome, GA, Amarie Clare Land of Atlanta, Mary Camille Land of Newnan, Kathryn McLendon Land of Newnan, and their father, Robert Tommy Land of Valdosta; Amanda Renee Tudor, Emily Kate White and Bryant William White, all of Valdosta.

In Memoriam: Mrs. H. C. (Elizabeth, “Lib”) Scott

Mrs. H. C. (Lib) Scott (85) formerly from Aiken, SC died January 19, 2011. Since her move from Aiken, SC in 2006 she resided at the home of her daughter in Huntington Beach, CA. The Aiken Camellia Society honored Lib (posthumously) on February 10, 2011. A poster was exhibited at that meeting to provide information for newer members on her accomplishments. The poster consisted of the newspaper memorial and a plaque surrounded by cultivars introduced by Lib. The Aiken Camellia Society made a contribution to the American Camellia Society in Lib’s name. Lib was deeply involved with camellia culture. She joined the American Camellia Society in late 1973 and later became a nationally accredited camellia judge. She originated and named 19 camellia cultivars between 1986 and 2001. These cultivars were primarily named for her family members and special friends.

Lib was a great competitor in the “unprotected blooms class” in camellia shows and usually was rewarded with the sweepstakes award for most blue ribbons. Competitors jokingly complained (to no avail) that it was unfair that Lib had a temperature moderation system that resulted from her camellia garden being located in a pine tree field on the side of her house; with the temperature further modified by warm waters of a stream that ran behind her garden. In the early 1970’s, because she was unable to attend a Georgia National Fair Show one year, Lib sent her flowers by another exhibitor. Lib’s blooms won all awards for camellias grown unprotected.

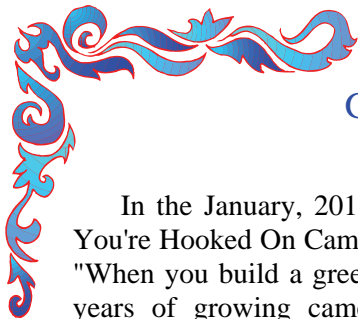

Lib was an avid grower of not only camellias but also other plants and flowers. In addition to being a nationally accredited camellia judge she was an accredited flower show judge. She joined the Cereus Gardeners, an Aiken Garden Club, in 1963. In their show the following year she won the Gladys Meadows State Horticultural Award for the most blue ribbons in most categories. She won that Award again in 1967 and 1968. Lib was Chairwoman for the Camellia Arrangements Division of the Aiken Camellia Show in the late 1970s and won first place in the American Camellia Society Design Contest (later discontinued) four times. Another design “Vision of Beauty” was chosen as the Cover photograph for the National Council of State Garden Club in 1998. She also won the South Atlantic Region Horticultural Achievement Award. She was invited to represent South Carolina at both the International Flower Show “Diamond Jubilee” in Rochester, NY, and at the National Council "Discovery" floral arrangements in Washington, DC.

Lib was instrumental in getting a Camellia Garden in Aiken and many of the new camellia varieties, named by Lib, are planted in that garden outside of the Doll House in Hopelands Gardens. This camellia garden is for cultivars started in Aiken and is an educational exhibit for visitors to view Aiken's contribution in camellia culture. Lib was extremely generous with her many plants. For example, in 1989-1990, she donated more than 1,000 plants from her yard to the City of Aiken. Many of these plants are seen each year by Aiken's residents and visitors as they bloom in the City Parkways. The City Horticulturist has stated that almost every street in Aiken has one or two of her shrubs or plants still growing there for public viewing.

The Aiken Camellia Society conducts field trips to Lib's former garden to air layer camellias. This is a wonderful outing enjoyed by all and it gives newer members of the Camellia Society an opportunity to grow many of the varieties and cultivars she grew and showed. Lib's love of camellias and other plants is still spreading to others and is being enjoyed even after her move to California and her death. Lib's generosity and love for camellias and plants in general will be missed by her many camellia friends and the citizens of Aiken.

GREENHOUSE TIPS

By Mack McKinnon

In the January, 2011 Journal, in Richard's article on "You Know You're Hooked On Camellias When...", he left off an important truism, "When you build a greenhouse, it will be too small." During my 40+ years of growing camellias, I've had the pleasure of building six camellia greenhouses and can speak from experience.

Pursuing a hobby with a camellia greenhouse is a most gratifying experience. When the owner is home, hardly a day goes by when it is not visited. Following knee surgery last year, the greenhouse was the very first place I visited when I was able to get out of the house. The greenhouse is my "GET-AWAY-FROM-IT-ALL WORLD"--especially in the winter. Nothing gives me more pleasure on a raw winter day than enjoying a greenhouse bathed under warming sun beams with "eye candy" of a beautiful panorama of camellia blooms.

For those planning to build a greenhouse, already have one, or just thinking about how wonderful it would be to have a greenhouse, here are a few of my thoughts on the subject:

For the proper greenhouse layout to handle the numbers of camellias you want to grow, you must decide first whether to grow camellias in containers or plant them in the ground. Container plants require the addition of every soil element and all water needed to keep them from ever wilting or getting stressed (if you want optimum show blooms). The biggest advantages of containers are being able to properly measure the amount of nutrients and water for a plant without worrying too much about its leaching away, allowing more plants per square foot by crowding them in smaller areas when plants are not in bloom, and being easy to move plants to other locations—shade house, under shade trees for natural rain, a new house. The late Fred Hahn from Charlotte was an expert in growing many plants in a small area by using severe pruning. His camellias barely had limbs over the outside of the container rim. Fred was a big winner who always had blooms from his container plants on the Head Table. The biggest disadvantages are: frequent repotting for good drainage, roots above ground tend to need watering more frequently, plants are killed more easily in hard freezes if out of greenhouse, and support is necessary to keep plants upright in high winds.

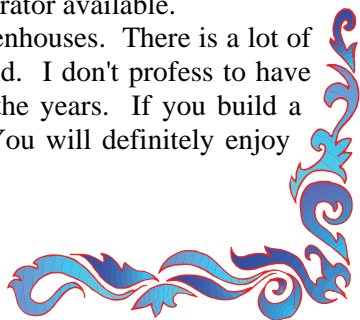

Experience has shown growing plants in-ground requires less effort and attention. Unrestricted roots reach out for the nutrients and moisture needed even when the grower gets a little lazy in caring for them—especially if the greenhouse cover is removed in hot summers and the plants can take advantage of the natural rains. Ask Geary Serpas about the time we moved 50 in-ground plants in one day. (It actually cost him a kidney stone.) We then have to list permanence and mobility as a disadvantage of in-ground growing. In-ground plants should be on at least four foot centers if at all possible. Presently because of limited space (greenhouse too small), mine are on three foot centers and I must (like Fred Hahn) control size with pruning.

You can purchase or build your greenhouse, but be sure to consider these points.

1. You need head room. Those one year grafts will soon be six or eight feet high. Also, height will help with the heating and ventilation. Ten feet is recommended.
2. Do you want a permanent cover or plastic in winter only? If you plan to cover every year, think about the design of the house and how you will go about installing the plastic. This can be an easy job or very difficult one. One thing for sure, do not try putting on polyethylene on a windy day!!! Been there, done that, got a t-shirt and saw the movie...
3. Will you be locating under natural shade or will shade cloth be necessary? Camellia greenhouses work fine in full sun as long as you provide shade and ventilation. Sixty-percent shade cloth will do the job along with a thermostatically-controlled vent fan.
4. For heating, you need a reliable system with some form of back-up. You only need enough heat to stay above 32 degrees in all parts of the house. At least one circulating fan is very important with any type of heat. My experience in mid-South Carolina was 40000 BTU's for a 20'x40' greenhouse with a plastic cover. Presently in a 23'x24' house I'm using four 1500 watt electric heaters (18000 BTU's) on separate circuits with two circulating fans. Using four heaters provides redundancy should any fail--and one will fail at the most inopportune time. For back-up, I use a portable 12000 BTU propane heater and also keep a gasoline electric generator available.

Be sure to talk with others who have greenhouses. There is a lot of good help to be had out in the camellia world. I don't profess to have all the answers--I've just gotten wiser over the years. If you build a greenhouse, good luck on your endeavor. You will definitely enjoy the benefits.
