President's Message

By Patrick Andrews

Hello from sunny Florida! I didn't expect to be writing the President's Message this soon, but with the untimely passing of our great friend, Clayton Mathis, I had to take the helm early. We will surely miss Clayton. He meant so much to all of us.

After a fantastic camellia season this past winter, we are all anxiously awaiting the next one, which will be here sooner than we're probably ready for. Already the flower buds are forming as I write this on the July 4th weekend. Now it's just a matter of keeping the spider mites and scale at bay and fertilizing one more time before the end of summer.

The officers and board of directors met for the spring board meeting on Saturday, April 30, at the home off Pete and Donna Denton in West Columbia, SC. The meeting was followed by a fantastic auction and a delicious barbecue dinner. Plans for the September meeting were finalized.

I hope you're as excited as I am about the September Convention, which will once again be held at the Litchfield Beach Golf and Beach Resort, this year on September 16 and 17. Activities include the Friday night barbecue dinner at the beach house, Bloody Marys and Mimosas before the Saturday morning meeting and auction, two educational talks and a judges' reaccreditation symposium, and the Saturday night banquet. I also look forward to my annual visit to Brookgreen Gardens in Murrells Inlet just north of the resort, which has an exquisite collection of outdoor sculpture in addition to beautiful gardens, and a visit to True Blue Nursery in Pawley's Island, where I always find at least one plant I can't live without.

I'd like to thank Mack McKinnon for securing our meeting venue, Richard Mims and Mary Kay Hall for their dedication in publishing our journal, Atlantic Coast Camellias, and Richard Buggeln for his tireless efforts in creating and maintaining such an outstanding web site for the ACCS.

I look forward to seeing you in September. Why don't you sign up a friend and bring them along to celebrate the camellia with all the good people of the Atlantic Coast Camellia Society!

Be sure to check the ACCS website for information about the Convention in September at

SO YOU WANT TO SHOW CAMELLIAS

Final installment

By Bonnie Serpas

Trying to stay cool, kicked back in my recliner, drinking a big tall glass of sweet ice tea, watching a game of the College World Series, I'm thinking how I work outside in the early morning and stay inside after lunch until the late afternoons. It didn't take this Yankee long to find out how to survive in the south's summer sun.

Thank goodness I started getting my camellias in a manageable condition last fall and winter. If I say so myself, my plants are looking good. A few of my varieties even had cats flying through them or maybe it was the heat and I was imagining things. I am seriously trying to keep the interior of the plants open for the air flow and keeping pests under control.

As my mind wanders, baseball games are good for that, I thought: I need to broadcast slow-release fertilizer and K-Mag. Oh well, I'll think about that tomorrow. The games have been so good. I want to watch as many as possible. How about those Aqua Chickens from Coastal Carolina from somewhere around Myrtle Beach. I need to Google those guys to get some information on them. I know the other teams but this team is a mystery to me.

Back to reality in my thoughts and my mental schedule, I need to fertilize, use K-Mag, water often, and start to disbud. This still doesn't make sense to me to jack them up and then take the buds off. I know I know...disbud so the remaining buds are bigger and a better quality.

It seems to me, this is where my saga began. The remaining buds will swell, you shoot them with "Gib" and then you have beautiful flowers to take to shows, give away or to just admire.

This year I will definitely participate in all aspects. Our club has two shows a year but there are other cities nearby with Camellia Shows that I attend. I learned so much helping out last year and meeting people from out of town. I feel so foolish thinking back: I can't believe I thought the man with all the Styrofoam coolers was the caterer.

Jack came by and woke me from my stupor. He was all excited because our camellia meeting would resume soon and the bottles of gib would be distributed. I took notes all last year and Jack told me about the American Camellia Society and the Atlantic Coast Camellia Society websites. There is more information out there than one can digest. The Atlantic Coast Camellia Society has monthly care listed, old Camellia Journals to read and my favorite, the picture gallery. I took pictures of my varieties when they were blooming and designed a location map of my yard in case name tags are lost. With the summer heat, it is a great time to stay indoors and "tiptoe fast through the Camellias." Find your variety, get the name, look it up in the Nomenclature, verify it is actuality your variety and bingo you have all this information from the comfort of your home and to boot it all, it's free to use. Yes, you read it right but someone has to maintain and pay the costs. When I see the Treasurer soon, I will become a new member and reap all the benefits.

Oh! By the way, the Aqua Chickens are the champions of the 2016 College World Series. I guess I should tell you, they are the Chanticleers (Rooster) from Coastal Carolina University in Conway, South Carolina and the official colors are teal and bronze.

Sweepstakes

By Richard Mims

Sweepstakes winners are extremely important for any show. These are the showers who work very hard because of the sheer joy they get from letting other people enjoy viewing magnificent blooms from a tremendous number of camellia cultivars. Just think of the time required in picking, preserving, and packing, making entry cards, transporting and putting out these flowers to win one award equivalent to a “Best Flower” Award. Winning the most blue ribbons and runner-ups are in my opinion, the top awards in a camellia show. These growers listed below won from one to ten awards each in the 2015-2016 camellia seasons. Who won the most sweepstakes isn’t what I am trying to tell. What I am letting you know is that the Atlantic Coast Camellia Society has 38 members who won sweepstakes awards last season. Kudos to all of you: Keep up the good work!
